Her Pulse Is

Delphi Community High School is not merely a brick building with 32 rooms of solid and well worn desks. She is people—582 students seeking knowledge. Upon the creaking floorboards of the study hall, in the babble of confusion within the gymnasium, and under the dim lights of the hushed auditorium, these people develop as individuals. They grow through sparkling splashes of hilarity and sudden stings of heartbreak in the turmoil that congests the hallways. They rely on the rewards of complex lectures and pensive moments in solitude. Tall and short, gifted and average, together and alone, they compose a vital current. This throbbing center of the school is people—their emotions, their thoughts, their movements, their friends, and their abilities.

Growing

Pencils tapping, nervous knees bouncing, and brows drawn in contemplation—the life of a student is a frustrating, impossible, wonderful one. The steady tick of a too-slow clock cancels all will to think. Eyelids creep down over sleep-starved eyes and snap open again as the teacher's voice explodes in the void. Every muscle tenses with the realization that this is the unprepared for class. All is not bad, though. There are days when a lecture is exceedingly interesting, or a class discussion is extra-lively. Then is when a student sits on the edge of his seat, straining forward, wanting to know—to feel—to learn.

Reading,

"FAIR IS FOUL, and foul is fair," quotes Mrs. Kathy D'Amico, student teacher from Indiana University, to a senior English class.

JE SUIS, TU ES, il est . . . French students concentrate on oral education.

THROUGH THEIR COLLABORATIVE EFFORTS, Marie Rhine, Debbie Sales, Jacque Schilling, and Lora Bell vary diction and sentence structure in a creative writing project.

Writing, & Rhetoric For Communications

Language Arts

Compulsory English stresses the interesting ways of literature and prose, the complex ways of grammar, and the valuable ways of good speech. Available both semesters this year, creative writing drills the importance of correct and effective composition. In speech, also offered both semesters for the first time, critical analysis encourages students to perfect, while an opportunity to report the daily announcements primes the speakers with practice. Exercising the techniques of producing a good newspaper, the journalism class publishes the biweekly Delphian. Freshman French and Spanish, emphasizing conversation through stories, games, and recordings, precede courses explaining culture and great literature. Three years of Latin also are taught, with principles of grammar monopolizing the studies.

ARMED WITH CHALK and knowledge, Señor Alvarez revises a student's exercise.

THE THEORY THAT KNOWING how to spell a word helps to place it in the active vocabulary is put to practice by junior English students during a quiz in spelling.

Learning About Man Guides Students

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION in a reference history book is pointed out to Jerry Smith by Mr. McGrew.

Social Studies

Every minute of every day, deeds of the present and past are being disputed. A rousing discussion of current foreign policies sets a United States history class on edge and provides the focus for a world history lesson. Township authority is but one of many administrative levels examined in government. This one semester class precedes economics, an intensive study of the capitalistic system. The concise course on man, sociology, is an investigation of human relationships. During the three years of social sciences required at Delphi Community High School, seeds of world understanding grow.

THE SETTLEMENT OF THE WEST is presented in an oral report by Phil Brookbank to the class.

To Their Positions In Life

GETTING BETTER ACQUAINTED with world problems involves Lou Penn's attention while Kathy Wertz and Don McCain catch up on their homework.

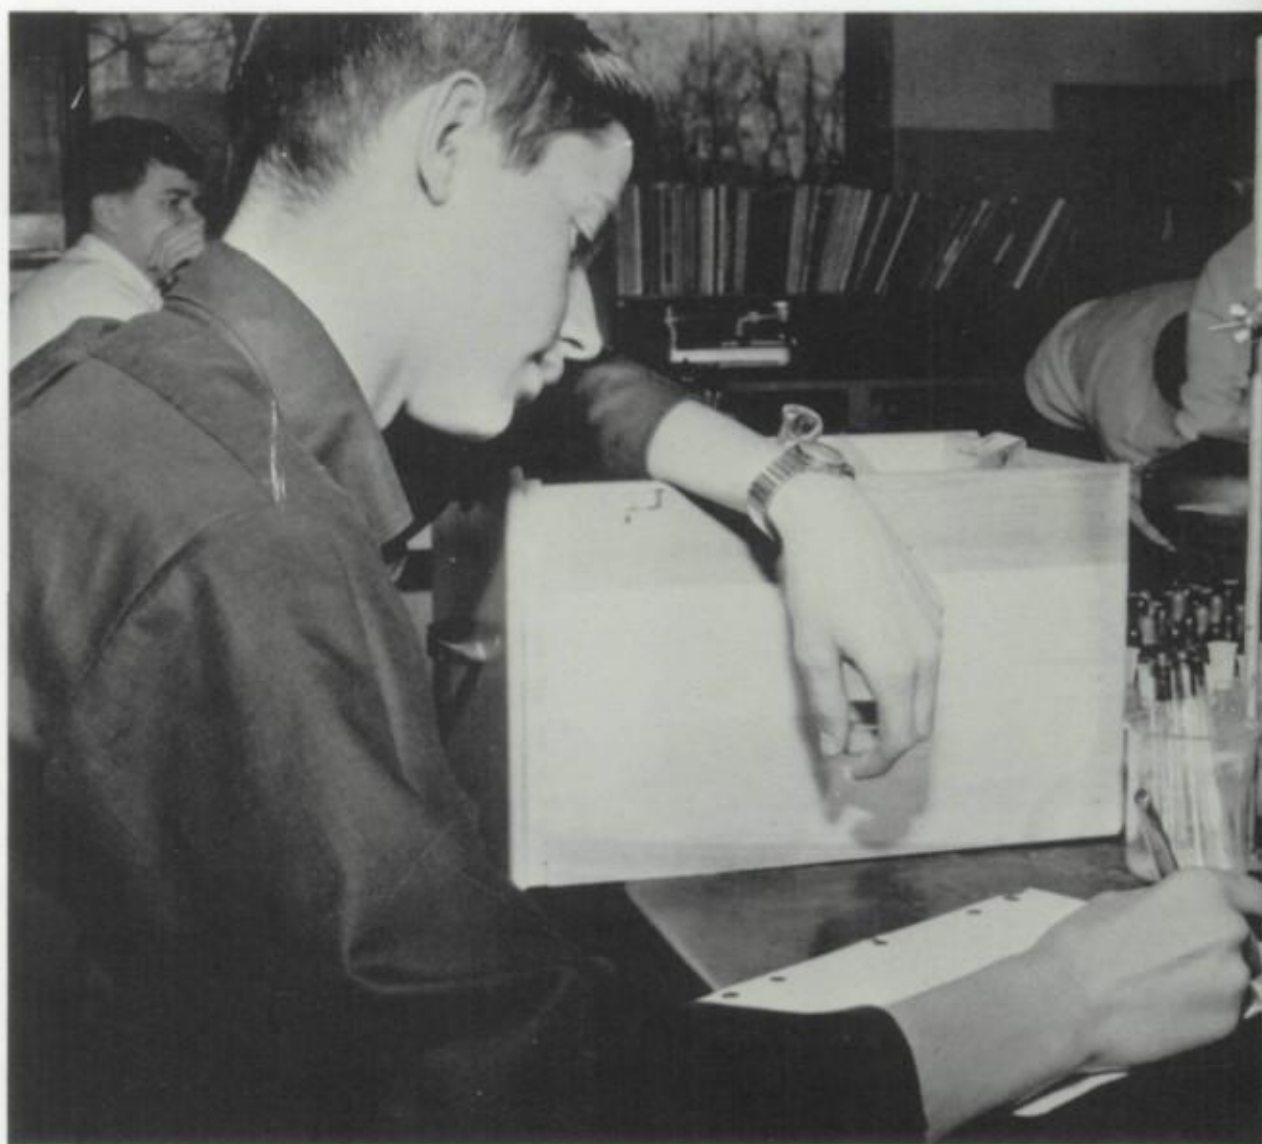

IN PREPARATION OF THE next day's lesson, Janet Simmerman, Elaine Hathaway, Dorothy England, and Luanna Foust work toward completion of the assignment.

Young Researchers Learn Techniques

AFTER SUCCESSFULLY COMPLETING his chemistry experiment, George Felix ponders over the final conclusions.

FASCINATED BY THE COMPLEXITIES of a bread mold, Don Smith carefully examines the fungus in his petri dish.

Science

Armed with nets and jars, biology students invade the local terrain each fall in pursuit of insects for their annual collection. General science students also explore through class lectures and field trips. In botany the essential razor blade slices plant sections for microscopic study while other tools are used during second-semester zoology to probe sharks and pigs. Across the hall, students meet the fuming acids, smoldering sulfur, and flashing magnesium that distinguish the chemistry lab. Whizzing "kiddie cars" and swinging weights reveal a mechanical world to physics scholars. Accuracy is the key to finding the components of unknown solutions in qualitative analysis, an advanced chemistry class where students also meet trying equilibrium equations and "prelims." Second-semester organic chemistry, new this year, investigates the carbon family. With this fine selection of science courses, students can prepare to face a scientific world.

Of Ordered Investigation

BOTH THE COLOR AND AMOUNT of precipitate are examined by Kay Lyons as she analyzes the components of her unknown solution in qualitative analysis.

WITH A QUICK RELEASE of his hand, Jim Ferrier sends the weights clattering to the floor.

Whether Old Or New, Number Systems Remain

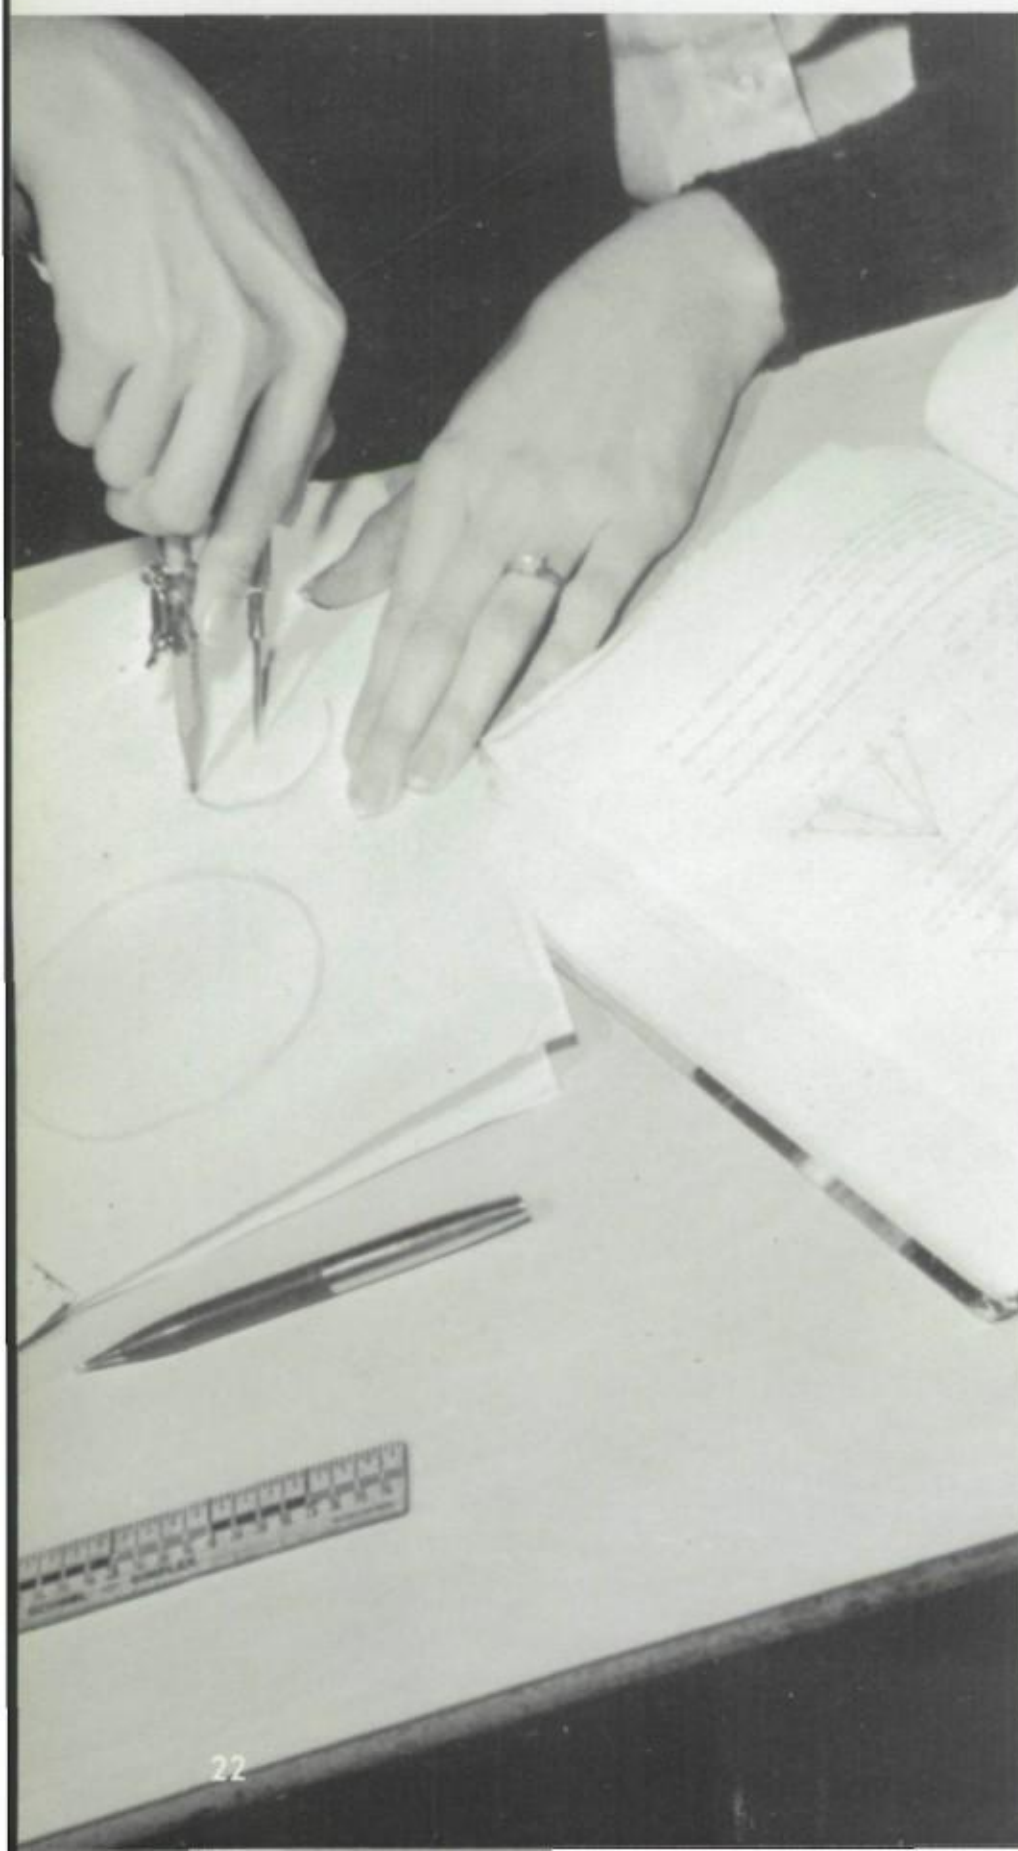

A PRESENTATION of problem solution is given by Nora McCarthy.

BASIC TOOLS OF GEOMETRY are displayed in skillful use.

Mathematics

To conquer the complexities of math, Delphi Community High School offers classes both fascinating and challenging. Algebra, a prerequisite for all advanced mathematics, introduces variables and equalities. Theorems and postulates are tested by geometry students as they prove that the two given triangles are congruent. Advanced algebra and college algebra blend a more detailed study of the mathematical intricacies into elevated techniques for solving problems. Exploring the relationships between angles and the sides of triangles, first semester trigonometry students detailedly study the angular functions. Completing any of these courses broadens the understanding and increases the knowledge of precise students.

An Incalculable Asset To Man Each Day

EXPLANATION AND DEMONSTRATION reflect themselves with Beth Robinson's aid.

PLOTTING GRAPHS is but one type of problem mastered by Mike Reifert.

POTTER STEVE DAVIS SMOOTHES the edges of a slab vase on the turn wheel.

Fine Arts

Nearly every hour of the day the art room teems with budding prodigies. Aware of the elements of design, students create with chalk, ink, and ceramics. Many of these enterprising workers display their talents at the annual art show. A soul-searing crash of cymbals may be heard fourth hour as the band members board a bus for the football field or march in the streets of Delphi. In preparation for the band's performances, diligent individuals and groups practice to refine techniques. Blending numerous voices in both sacred and secular songs, the choir entertains at public concerts and at school convocations. The world of acting is explored during dramatics, a one semester course. Bearded ladies, miniature stage sets, and small productions emerge from instructions on theater make-up, stage flats, and one-act dramas.

Sensitivity — Appreciation

CONCENTRATING ON THEIR HARMONIOUS TONES, three French horn players look to the band director for further instructions.

CATTAILS AND FLAX afford Teresa Pearson incentive for artistic expression.

Brighten & Broaden Personalities

EXPRESSIVE HANDS CAN CONVEY much of the passion in the fine arts.

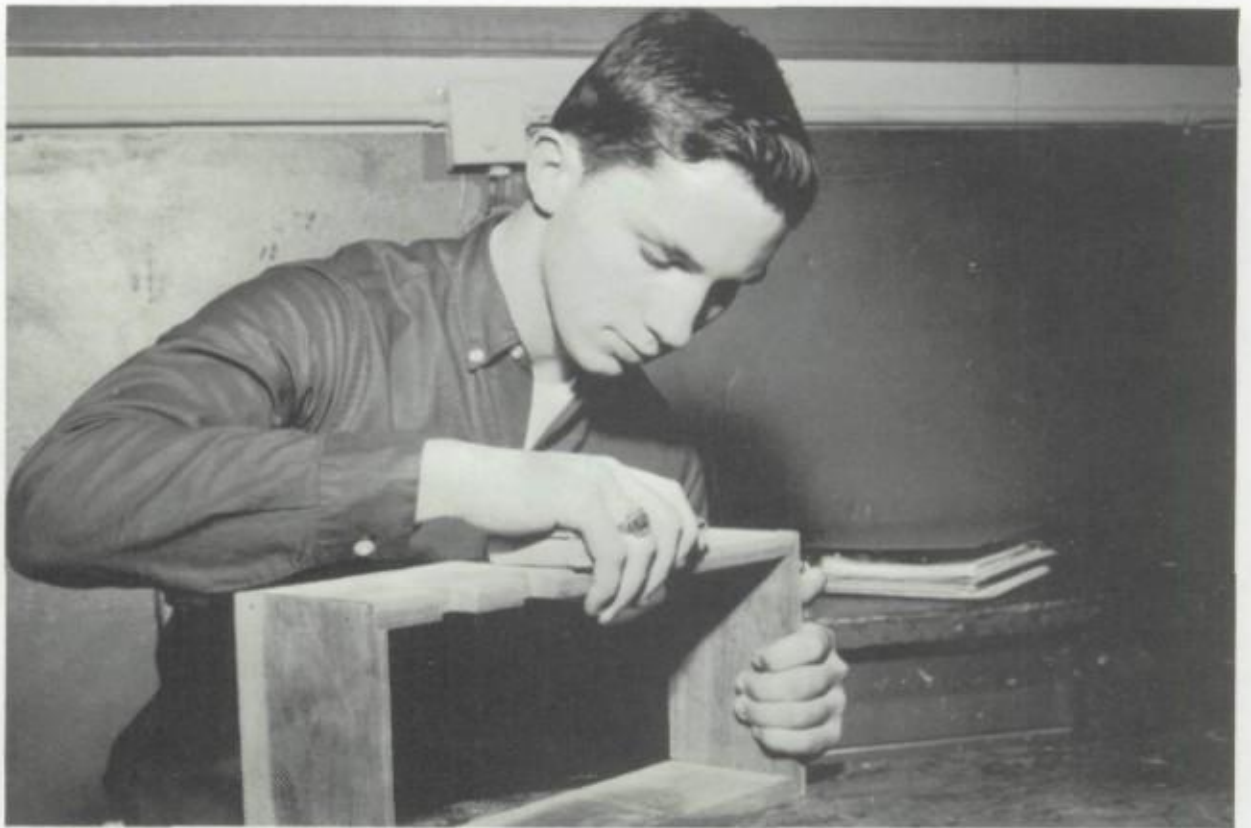

IN PRÉPARATION FOR AN UPCOMING CONCERT, individual choir members drill difficult measures.

Vocational Training Produces Practical

WITH PATIENCE AND TRAINED HANDS, Kenny Boyles sands the product of a special project.

AS HIS CLASS WATCHES Mr. Ebrite gives a demonstration during woodshop.

INVOLVED IN A DIFFICULT assignment, Mick White and Floyd Fultz reread directions.

Skills And New Ideas

Industrial Arts

Amid curled woods shavings and the distinctive buzzing of machines, industrial arts students develop the necessary rudiments for practical skills. General shop, a preliminary course, acquaints students with the basic industrial arts techniques. In wood and metal shop, pupils thoroughly study the uses of woods and metals. Printing, offered for the first time this year, teaches class members the processes of relief and block printing. Discussing gasoline engines, an advanced course in power shop, instructions stress the make up and functions of an engine. Two years of drafting are offered to provide young men enrolled at DCHS the foundations of industrial design and mechanical drawing.

A SALAD BOWL emerges from a piece of solid walnut as Jeff Emmons works on the wood lathe.

A T-SQUARE, A PENCIL, and a steady hand are the tools of Ed Kesterson as he draws a detailed layout in Drafting I.

Home Ec Prepares Tomorrow's Housewives

Home Economics

While sewing machines whir and pleasant aromas drift from the basement halls, dedicated home economic students deal with the complex world of the home. Each course attempts to make every student a nurse, chef, and seamstress, as well as an efficient future wife. From sewing a simple cotton apron to a difficult wool suit, the practical skills needed by every girl are learned. After instruction in planning basic meals, home economics pupils prepare taste-tempting dishes that are enjoyed by all. Advanced students critically examine furniture styles and well-planned rooms. Neat and attractive clothing styles are stressed in the beginning classes. A student with a major in this department leaves high school with a better understanding of the principles of good homemaking.

THREADING THE SEWING machine needle must be mastered before Marilyn Widner can begin the hour's work on a new skirt.

Tilling Of Soil Requires Unique Talent

Agriculture

Automation has replaced many hardworking farmers of yesterday and is demanding advanced training for those entering the field of agriculture. Today's farmers must carefully plant crops, control soil acidity, repair equipment, and care for animals. In the four years of agriculture offered at Delphi Community High School, students are given opportunities to benefit from the experience they gain while participating in land and livestock judging contests. Agriculture farm management is the prime element examined during the last year of study, and students are graduated knowing the importance of good administration in the agricultural world of today.

INSPECTING THE SIZE, texture, and shape of corn kernels demands the skill and attention of John Haggard and Barney Johns.

A LESSON IN THE ANATOMICAL study of the sections of a beef steer is explained to Don Johns by Mr. Weaver.

VOLUNTEERING HANDS SHOOT UP in the air as Miss Ghene poses a question.

Fit Bodies Build An Unbeatable Team

BALANCE, RHYTHM, and CO-ORDINATION are the elements of a successful handstand.

ONE ... TWO ... THREE ... FOUR ... raise those legs off the floor.

Physical Education

The thunder of pounding feet and the yells from excited competitors distinguish the school's largest classroom, the gymnasium, from all others. Here basketball and volleyball games reward students with fellowship. Working out on the equipment and daily calisthenics help to build better muscles. In addition to taking physical fitness tests, height and weight charts are kept and used. Sportsmanship cannot be taught, but those enrolled in this class soon learn the values of being a good winner or loser.

Driver Education

"Leave yourself an out," "Make sure others see you," and "Stay alert" are expressions repeatedly stressed in the four driver education classes. During the one semester course, classroom discussion and illustrations help students learn to meet the responsibilities of a good driver. After school driving lessons in the four new cars swell with terror and pleasure. Students must overcome the frights of backing, parallel parking, and making proper left turns, besides trying to acquire the prompt reactions needed in defensive driving. After the final examination, tomorrows' drivers are prepared for their decisive visit to the license branch.

UNDER THE EXPERIENCED instructions of Mr. John Wilcox, Diane Nelson completes final take-off procedures.

Students Accelerate In Driver Training

A FAITHFUL DRIVER EDUCATION car suffers under the feminine hand of Kathy Benner as she attempts to change a tire.

WHILE TAKING A DRIVER training examination, students demonstrate that consideration pays dividends in good driving.

Secretarial Lessons Demand Practice

Business Education

Swiftness and accuracy are key traits in business education. During typing, shorthand, and secretarial training classes, students not only acquire these traits, but also develop concentration through continual practice. Bookkeeping and general business pupils prepare thorough records and study business information. Filing, duplicating, and tabulating assignments confront the office practice class. The dictation and calculative machines have gained importance with the increase in students pursuing business education careers.

WITH EACH THROW of the typewriter carriage Linda Thompson concentrates on a new line.

PROFICIENCY AND SWIFTNESS are expressed by the hands of a shorthand student.

AS LONG AS THE TYPEWRITER continues to make mistakes, Steve Wallace will have to erase them.

Guidance Proves To Be Great Assistance

Guidance

Neat stacks of college pamphlets, daily school announcements, and career folders introduce each student to the guidance department. Students from all classes get advice here; upperclassmen apply to colleges, take SAT tests and National Merit tests. Somewhere the guidance department makes time to organize Career Night, giving the students a chance to investigate future vocations, and Parents' Night, providing an opportunity for the parents to visit their children's classes. Yet, across the well-worn desk in the inner office, still travel all the students' dreams, their disappointments, their achievements, that make Delphi Community High School a place of learning.

THE NOTE on the door says she'll be back soon.

NEXT YEAR'S SCHEDULE is the topic of discussion between Mrs. Van Sickle and Dix Weaver.

SHELVES OF INFORMATION answer the career questions of Brenda Wilson, Linda Wilson, and Melody Kenworthy.

Sharing

Clomping, stomping, laughing, thinking people buzz through these halls near the end of each day. They go to club meetings, to see a film or hear a speaker, to music rehearsals, and to committee meetings to plan an important program or paint posters. Some go to classes. Wherever they go, these people lead and follow, speak and listen, build up and revise. Their energies leap past the confines of academics and spill over into the more casual kinds of education. With all their racket and their chattering and their thinking, they make DCHS a little brighter, a little stronger.

ANTICIPATION OF CHRISTMAS grows as Sue Watson trims the annual Student Council Christmas tree.

Student Representatives

Student Council

Each Wednesday afternoon school senators enter their chamber in the auditorium to review student problems and discuss Student Council projects. What can be done about cheating? Was the Fall Dance a success? What are the results of locker inspection?

These elected representatives, members of the Student Council, are responsible for strengthening good citizenship attitudes and directing school activities. Through the suggestion box, the opportunity to state complaints is open to everyone. School senatorship is a practice of representative democracy—the foundation of the American system of government. As each member gives his time and effort to the Council, the Council gives to its members.

DECORATION FOR THE FALL DANCE, Melody Kenworthy helps Clark Adams and Steve Hutton hang black and red.

THE LONELY SUGGESTION box sits in an empty hallway, enjoying the first peace and quiet in seven hours.

Girls' Service Club

Utilizing a large membership, the Girls' Service Club assumes many responsibilities. Christmas decorations start in members' hands and end on classroom doors. Assisting in the March of Dimes drive and visiting an orphanage not only benefit others, but also give a broadened awareness of public problems.

Hi-Y Club

One of Delphi Community High School's service clubs, Hi-Y promotes fellowship among senior high boys. Maintaining an affiliation with the Indiana YMCA, club members try to follow standards of "clean living." Traditionally, Hi-Y sponsors the annual Thanksgiving Convocation and gathers food for a Christmas basket. The collection of money for the March of Dimes, an Easter project, and a weekly "dress-up" day help to augment the list of Hi-Y activities. At the end of each year, one boy is honored as the "Best Mental Attitude" award winner.

A HI-Y MEETING is opened by President Bob Politz as he asks Chaplain Martin Mears to read the devotions.

ATTENTIVE EARS RECEIVE the reading of last meeting's minutes by Secretary Peter Dwyer.

Club Promotes Better World-Wide Relations

Social Studies Club

Showing an individual's importance in foreign and domestic relations, creating an active interest in government and history, and acquainting future citizens with their patriotic responsibilities is the purpose of the Social Studies Club. After fulfilling the membership requirement of interviewing a city or county official and reporting to the club, new members take an active part in discussing current issues. Acting as a senate, the club debates bills written and introduced by its "senators." Club members become foreigners while trying to pass the test for United States citizenship. A realistic trial is presented with members filling the roles of judge, jury, prosecution, and defense. Assisting at the AFS receptions, the members welcomed Leonor and Luigi to the school and the community.

Features And News Are Published Bi-Weekly

Delphian Staff

Headlines, leads, and editorials soon become familiar to any member of the Delphian Staff. Comprised mainly of journalism students, the Delphian Staff bi-weekly publishes an interesting and informative school newspaper which reveals both the students' opinions and the current news stories. Students can read about last week's ball games, the spring dance, or latest records. Many long hours are spent in preparation for the publication day. News must be comprised, stories must be written, and pages must be typed; then follows the stenciling and the proof-reading. All the work and effort of this staff arrives to each student under the name of The Delphian.

The School Year

Oracle Staff

In their hours of brainwork, dedicated staff members correlate talent and imagination to produce an annual that throbs with life. Spirited competition among sales personnel boosts ORACLE circulation above the anticipated goal. Art and copy staff members create descriptive copy, and reconstruct geometric layouts. Photographers are in constant search of unusual candids and predetermined scenes which will supply additional color and life to the yearbook. The duties of the sports writers become more concentrated toward the deadline because they must compile all final statistics. Typists nimble fingers translate scribbled revisions into a final form to be sent to the publisher. The co-editors coordinate the work of all staffs and determine the final polish for all pages.

Although it sometimes seems drudgery, the satisfaction of seeing the final product—the bound and printed ORACLE—is reward enough for the staff.

Feminine Skills Are Accented With Action

Girls Athletic Association

For the lively members of the Girls Athletic Association, the year contains many fun-filled activities. While participating in hockey, basketball, and volleyball games, the girls improve their skills and practice good sportsmanship. They also enjoy the opportunity of attending the Christmas Convocation and a Hungarian Ballet at Purdue, ice hockey games, and other professional sports. Often during the year the club sponsors skating and swimming parties for the members and their guest sports enthusiasts. GAA points, earned by attendance at club meetings, form a basis for awards given to the members on the school's Honor Day. Amusement and exercise—this organization provides both for its vivacious members.

Future Teachers of America

What makes a good teacher? This question prods the minds of many Future Teachers of America members. Working closely with the guidance office, FTA helps plan Parents' Night and Career Night where the questions of both students and parents are answered.

Some members enjoy cadet teaching which helps students decide if teaching should be their future occupation. This year on Teacher Appreciation Day, the teachers have a 'day off' while members of FTA try their hands at leading a class.

THE ABLE SERVICES of Veronica Oesterlein and other FTA members acquaint parents with room locations during Open House.

AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY during Story Hour, a summer project of FTA, volunteers Susie Temple and Beth Robinson excite these youngsters toward an interest in reading.

Dedicated Membership Accents Achievement

Future Homemakers of America

Becoming a successful homemaker is a goal of most young girls. The Future Homemakers of America search for good methods of family care, clothing selection, and home furnishing.

A large membership enables the club to enjoy a number of projects. In December the girls spread good cheer by making favors for nursing homes and caroling in the community. An annual highlight is the visit to the Indianapolis Home Show. After game dances help to supplement funds.

The home is the basic social unit of culture. The successful homemaker is its support. Strengthening the nation by beginning in the home, FHA helps to produce good citizens.

Boys Get Field Experience In Farming

WHILE CONDUCTING the meeting, Vice President Tom Flora asks Secretary Fred Wise to read the minutes of the last meeting.

Future Farmers of America

Supplying its members with an expanded knowledge of farming and its related fields, the Future Farmers of America Club is open to all students enrolled in vocational agriculture courses. Members acquire experience through participating in public speaking and in judging soils and crops. The annual pest contest stimulates interest among the club members. They compete in killing pests to acquire points for club membership. Through FFA the members obtain abundant background for a successful career in agriculture.

Young Scientists Channel Talents

Biology Club

A better than average scholastic index in science plus at least three years of high school science are the requirements for membership in the Biology Club. During club meetings, the organization's participants listen to informative lectures, study microscopic animals, or discuss biology-related occupations. At the annual Science Fair, each member submits a well-planned display. The fair is open to the public, and they may observe displays that vary from a complex graph of paramecia growth to intricate studies of the chemical effects on a frog's heart-beat. The projects judged to be most superior are sent to the Lafayette Regional Science Fair for display and competition.

PREPARING FOR THE SCIENCE FAIR, Elaine Hathaway, Pat Daly, and Sandy Cunningham weigh their hamster that was treated with thyroid hormone.

Science-Math Club

The will to participate, gain and share knowledge, and compete are fundamentals of membership in the Science-Math Club. Each member is required to prepare a project to be exhibited at the Delphi Science Fair. Blue-ribbon winners, whose work is highly praised, proceed to the regional judging. Champions meet their greatest competition during a highly competitive week at the National Science Fair held in Seattle, Washington.

A major responsibility of this club is the operation and maintenance of the school's record players, tape recorders, and film projectors. With their vast resource of tape-recorded radio tunes, the organization provides music for after-game dances.

GIVING A GROTESQUE APPEARANCE, Elaine Zerfas acts as a human guinea pig at the Atomic Energy Commission Convocation.

Linguists Capture The Culture Of France

French Club

Bursting forth each year with exciting projects and programs, the French Club works to make every meeting interesting. French films and games plus speeches on France increase each member's knowledge of the language and the country.

Every year the Christmas trip to Indianapolis gives students an opportunity to absorb the French surroundings at Rene's Restaurant. This eventful day is filled with additional programs of educational value. The relationship between the French Club and the student body advances through the annual French dance where a miniature Eiffel Tower becomes the center of attention.

VIVIDLY EXTENDING a Merry Christmas to the student body, this picturesque bulletin board is an achievement of the French students.

Piñatas Add Foreign Flair To DCHS Halls

Spanish Club

Colombian songs and dances plus slides from South American Countries capture the attention of all Spanish Club members. Multicolored pinatas made by the club hung from the school ceilings, announcing the Christmas season. Members diligently planned for an after-game dance where Spanish decorations were displayed. During the meetings, the spoken Spanish offers fluency to those refined in the language and practice for the rest. Through the club activities, a better understanding of both the Spanish people and the language is offered.

Latin Club

Latina Mortua lingua non est! This Latin Club motto translates "Latin is not a dead language." It forms the basis for the five great "Romance" languages and from this classic tongue stems innumerable English words.

Caesar's Ball provided one of the yearly highlights of after-game dances. A convocation presented before the student body inspired recruits to keep the club's enthusiasm bubbling.

Spring is the time for banquets, and a traditional Roman Banquet is one of the most festive. Attendants garbed in replicas of Roman togas and tunics created an effect of the B.C. world with a contemporary flair. Latin I members serve as slaves to the veteran participants. Annually, this club's own feast spotlights the year's many activities.

House Lights Dim Over Waiting Audience

AS MARY ANN NEWELL tells the story of "O Holy Night" during the Christmas convocation, Joe Fowler waits in the wings for his cue.

Thespians

Curtain going up! Thespian Troupe 1593 is a group of crew members and actors who have acquired membership points by participating in the dramatic productions at DCHS. This club performs a comedy and drama each year. Both are received with much enthusiasm by the public.

To further the cultural aspects of the club, members attended the Purdue Christmas Convocation and the filmed production of "Othello."

TO GIVE AN ATMOSPHERIC CHANGE, Rick Cope dims the stagelights during the production of Harvey.

Harvey . . .

AS FAMILY, FRIENDS, AND MEDICS MEET, Harvey invites them all—Joe Fowler, Bev Yerkes, Veronica Oesterlien, Pete Dwyer, Tom Wood, Tom Flora, Mary Johnson, Mike Wingard—to his favorite retreat for liquid refreshment.

"A BIG WHITE RABBIT?" asks Mike Hyman as Ruth-Ann Shonk and Bev Yerkes ponder these strange happenings.

HER FINGERS HASTILY SMOOTHING the stage make-up, Cindy Pearson transforms Bev Yerkes into Elwood's neurotic sister.

First Play Of Year Termed Big Success

TO STUDENT DIRECTOR Rosemary Lee and Mr. Buck belong the final worries.

As the curtain whirled to a close on November 13, 11 actors hurried off the stage to remove their makeup. Five strenuous weeks of rehearsal were over.

The play, Harvey, features Elwood P. Dowd, who boasts a 6'11/2" white rabbit companion. His sister tries to admit him to Chumbley's Rest, but through unusual circumstances she is committed. After many hilarious incidents, the play closes with Elwood keeping his rabbit and each of the others returning to his eccentric ways.

At the after-play party held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler, music and refreshments enlivened the festivities while cast and crew members celebrated their success.

PETE DWYER'S TRANSPARENT pooka, Harvey, isn't making a favorable impression on Mary Johnson, Bev Yerkes, and Jackie Walters.

BACKSTAGE, DAVE WOODS, secures a stage flat in preparation for final performance.

Debate Club

Everyone talks; few people say anything. For the first time in several years, students at DCHS, working under the supervision of Mr. Daniel McGrew, formed a debate team. Hours are spent in libraries gathering information on the state-selected topic, "Should the federal government interfere in labor disputes?" Debate stresses the importance of speaking well and learning to "think on your feet." Much time is spent collecting knowledge to be used for speeches and then organizing that information into lucid thoughts and concrete ideas relating to the subjects. Much experience and valuable techniques are learned at the various statewide speech meets attended by members of the DCHS debate team.

Blended Voices Salute A World Of Music

Choir

Sparking a touch of harmony within the music department, the high school choir adds to the world a song. During sixth hour on assigned days of the week, strains of music from choir practice roam the hallways. Striving for both tone quality and robust volume, choir members learn popular and secular songs besides refining breathing and enunciating techniques. By producing two musical concerts annually, the choir not only provides relaxing entertainment for the public but also furnishes valuable experience for the members. Solos and duets, bass and soprano—the choir presents to both school and the community music at its finest.

Silvernotes

Fifteen girls, accompanist Nancy Smith, and Director David Goacher, meet every Thursday after school in the auditorium to rehearse. Each member of this all-girl singing group, the Silvernotes, wears a green dress accented by a silver pin shaped as a music note. "Lift Thine Eyes," "He's Gone Away," and "I Wonder as I Wander" are part of the group's repertoire. The goal of improved musical ability is accomplished, and the satisfaction of participation is great.

Top Twenty

With melody, notes, chords, and balance, twenty selected voices become one. Twenty talented youths brought together in a single organization provide the school and community with relaxing entertainment as they learn for themselves the techniques of harmony, tone, and dynamics. Weekly practice sessions prepare the group for concerts, convocations, the winter vocal contest, charity shows at Long-cliff State Hospital, and a television appearance. Their performances include madrigals, religious songs, folk music, and popular selections.

ONE LONG LINE displays the skilled marching and accomplished playing of the entire band as it performs the drills of a football show.

ADDING THEIR FLARE for fancy twirling to the band, majorettes Marcia Kirkpatrick, Terri Martin, Claudann Brooks, Mary Eileen Johnson, Connie Myers, and Mary Guckien, molded new ideas into graceful baton routines.

"FORWARD, MARCH!" bellows Drum Major Sam Kerlin, during half-time performance of the high school band.

In Marching And Concert

Displaying its musical talents, the DCHS Band performs during athletic events, local festivals, and public concerts. The band council, a governing body, works for better administration so that each bandsman may develop a greater sensitivity for fine music.

WITH A SOLEMN salute, another game begins.

Volunteer Musicians Provide Spirit

VOLUNTEER PEP BANDSMEN shout their enthusiasm at a pep session through their music.

Each Thursday at 7:00 p.m., four trumpets, five saxophones, the piano, and the drums feel the touch of the capable fingers of the Dance Band members. They played at dances, basketball games and two concerts. If one happens to pass by the bandroom on a Thursday evening, he may hear the strains of "Sunday Morning," "Li'l Darling," "Peppermint Twist," "Enamorata," "Tonight," "Maria," or "The Stripper." The Dance Band earned a first place in the district music contest and also brought home a "first" in the state contest.

Spirit And Determination Lift School Morale

CHEERING WITH INTENSITY, pep block members chant an enthusiastic yell.

WITH STRAIGHT ROWS and smiling faces everyone prepares to follow the cheerleaders.

WHILE BACKING THEIR TEAM, students pause to pay tribute to their country as the "Star-Spangled Banner" is sung.

Pep Club

In spite of its small number, the Pep Club upholds an excellent reputation by yelling just as loud as a large pep block and by showing just as much school spirit and good sportsmanship. Black V-necked sweaters accented by gold scarves and white gloves worn by all pep block members create a very favorable impression. Although the team wins the game, the Pep Club adds an immeasurable amount of enthusiasm and boosts the morale of the players. When the team wins, the cheerleaders and Pep Club have played a significant part in that victory. They have been at all the games, cheering the team in spite of game losses. Pep Club is an important part of the athletic program in the school.

Varsity D Club

Outstanding participation in any sport is rewarded by a varsity letter which qualifies a boy for membership in the Varsity D Club. Upholding the reputation of having some of the most active club participants, Varsity D boys sell popcorn and cokes at all home basketball games and track meets. Members also enjoy attending professional football and hockey games. From its treasury, the Varsity D Club contributes needed equipment to the school athletic department.

Coaching

Perhaps sports is hot coffee and cold noses, or maybe it's an icy coke and a good friend. For some it is hours of work and sweat, trying and sometimes succeeding. Those watching are swept up with the desire to run but must be satisfied to yell. Those that play must keep in mind the techniques and strategy they learned in practice. Both on the field and on the sidelines there are shouted instructions to "do better next time," and there is hoping—not just for self—but for the "other guy," too. Win or lose is not the ultimate. Those involved are taking a lesson in good sportsmanship.

Twenty straight victories—this became the crowning 1965 football achievement following a 25-14 triumph over arch-rival Lafayette Central Catholic. For the second consecutive season, Head Coach Tony Berto's charges finished their ten game schedule unbeaten, compiling the second longest victory string in Indiana.

Although Coaches Tony Berto, George Swan, and Bill Jargstorf saw only eleven letter-men report to practice, several of the inexperienced performers earned their positions with hours of dedicated work. The effort and patience paid off in wins.

Delphi received state-wide attention midway through October prior to the Rensselaer contest. Both squads were 6-2 at the time, and over 5,000 fans showed up for the action. Tom Freeman, scoring three touchdowns, one with a scant three seconds remaining on the clock, sparked the Oracles to their seventh triumph.

Tributes to the team's success lingered even after the victory bonfire. To the satisfaction of the entire team, their field general, junior quarterback

Steve Brehmer, earned a berth on the Associated Press's Junior All-State Honor Team. Greg Shaeffer received a contact from a major university because of his exceptional linebacking and all-around play. Scoring 124 points, Tom Freeman finished the year as the second leading season scorer in Delphi's football history.

Co-captains Greg Shaeffer and Tom Freeman set a precedent at the annual football banquet when they became the first co-winners of the "Most Valuable Player" trophy. Tom Freeman was also named "Outstanding Back" while Ed Ringer received the "Outstanding Lineman" award. By displaying consistent sportsmanship, tackle Rob Pearson copped the coveted "Best Mental Attitude" plaque.

Under the capable guidance of Coach Bill Jargstorf, the Reserve team gained experience as they won two and lost their third contest to Culver by only one point. Remarkably, the squad never had an opportunity to practice as a team.

While sophomore and junior players worked with the Varsity, the freshmen practiced with the regular Freshman Team.

Although the freshmen didn't win any of their games, they, too, worked diligently at practice to build a solid foundation in sports.

A SMILE DAWNS on Leonor Vallejo's face as Senior Class President Jim Ferrier awards her the queen's crown.

AT THE BEGINNING of second-half action, Jackie Walters, Susan McCormick, Queen Leonor Vallejo, Renda Groninger, and Sue Ellen Beale adorn the seats of honor in the student section.

Brightly colored signs, a jubilant student body, and more than 100 paper hats marched through the streets and the rain. An entire school was caught in the excitement of seeing old friends again, showing off their very own football team, and speculating on the outcome of the vote for queen. Laughing and hoping and cheering and dancing—that was Homecoming.

HEADING TOWARD VICTORY, Co-Captains Freeman and Shaeffer lead the Oracles through the Senior line.

BRINGING UP THE TAIL of the Homecoming Parade, Mary Ann Coghill, Brenda Delaney, Teresa Pearson, and Jane Woods express as much enthusiasm as those who went ahead.

"The agony of defeat" rules only the defeated mind. To loyal Delphi fans who followed the basketball squad throughout the season, the 1966 Oracles were winners all the way. When a daily newspaper referred to Delphi as "the best 1-19 team in the state," the people who came to the games and knew the score nodded in agreement.

Even if the Oracles hadn't lost nine extremely close contests, two in overtime, their clean play and indomitable fighting spirit couldn't have represented their school more sincerely.

With a single victory for support, Head Coach William Jargstorf primed his players, who were not conceded a chance in sectional play, for a 62-54 upset of Linden, a team which had conquered twelve opponents prior to the tournament.

As basketball fortunes swing upward in the coming year, Coach Jargstorf will be minus the services of six seniors: Clark Adams, John Aldrich, Dave Emmons, Tom Freeman, Ed Ringer, and Greg Shaeffer.

JUMPING FOR A SHOT at the basket, Mike Stone outreaches his opponent to tick up two points on the Oracles' scoreboard.

WITH A SHRUG of disgust, Ron Strantz tells Ed England and Mike Myer of the game.

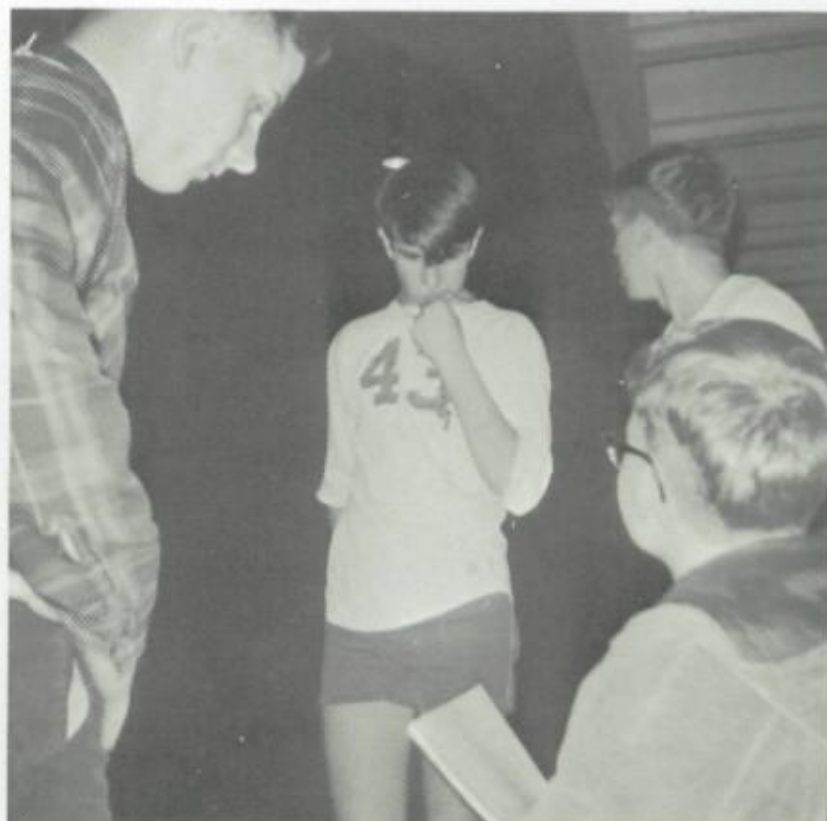

ATTEMPTING TO POINT OUT the correct uniform for basketball, Mr. John Wilcox tries to convince Karl Grimm that madras shorts are not cricket.

Intramural basketball sported its record participation this year with eight teams. Meeting once a week, intramural is designed for the boys who just enjoy playing basketball. Again this year, the intramural cagers played the "Faculty Hotshots" in a battle ending with the teachers as champions.

"DID I GET ANY POINTS tonight?" queries Tie Ebrite.

Oracles Race Through Miles Of Competition

Cross Country, along with football, balances the fall sports program for Oracle athletes. A single letterman, Jim Ferrier, reported to Coach Norman Ebrite in September, but 17 different boys earned points through practice and meet participation.

During the 1965 schedule, Delphi harriers entered competition against 83 teams, defeated 35, and lost to 48. Encountering many of the stronger teams in the area more than once, several of the returning Oracles gained excellent experience. Coach Ebrite commented, "A number of the younger runners showed steady improvement during the season and finished ahead of the older runners by the end of the season."

Junior Harold Garrison ended the year with both the fastest time, 10:37, and the most total points, 235. The only other major award winner was Jim Ferrier, who garnered 200 points.

TENSE MUSCLES AWAIT the crack of the starting gun.

Her People . . .

Creating, Deciding,

Being

People are just about everywhere. They can be seen running to class before the bell rings, in study hall struggling with an especially difficult math lesson, or just standing at their lockers talking to friends. School ends at three-thirty every day, but people don't. Some of them go to the drugstore or to ballgames. Others go to the library or after-school jobs. People are just about everywhere. Some are special people as are the AFS'ers Luigi Conte, Leonor Vallejo and Mary Ann Newell, the international scholars. Sometimes people don't mean anything at all. Sometimes they mean quite a lot—especially if they belong to DCHS.

Superintendent & Board Develop

CO-OPERATION AND HOURS OF LABOR enable the School Board members, Mr. Truman Spitler, Mr. Charles Nance, Mr. James Scott, President Dale Fossnock, Mrs. Mary Ferrier, Mr. Charles Flora, and Mr. Frank Lybrook, to solve pressing problems of education

With responsibilities ranging from employing faculty and staff members to paying teachers' salaries, the Delphi Community School Board governs the school system. Meeting at least once a month, the Board, through investigation and debate, seeks to resolve its challenges.

Working with the Board of Education, Superintendent of Schools Arthur Weddell, aided by a capable secretarial staff, coordinates the programs of all the corporation's schools.

Prior to his duties with this system, Mr. Weddell was Superintendent of American Schools in Tehran, Iran. Although administrative duties crowd his hours, he is active in numerous social and civic organizations. A Major in the Marine Corps Reserve, the Superintendent has circled the world three times and traveled extensively in the Far East. He takes pride in his collection of oriental rugs and brass.

IMPARTING A LOOK of modern architecture, the Board of Education Building is the center of all vital transactions that make Delphi Community School an efficiently administered corporation.

Expanding Policies Of Public Education

SERVING AS SUPERINTENDENT of the Delphi Community School Corporation, Mr. Arthur Weddell strives to improve the educational programs.

WITH EFFICIENCY Mrs. Pauline Moore, Mrs. Edithe Berninger, and Mrs. Bonnie Sieber work in the Superintendent's Office.

Principal And Faculty Promote Education

THE MULTI-FACETED TASK of principal of Delphi Community High School is performed by Mr. James Hertling.

In addition to advising teachers and students, Principal James Hertling helps determine the curriculum and class schedule. He is seen striding through the hallway as he jots notes on his clip board. Athletic ticket sales, report card preparation, and myriad student questions confront office secretaries Mrs. Joann Schell and Mrs. Pat Lohrman. Mrs. Shirley Wise, guidance department secretary, spends hours on school transcripts.

EVERY HOUR OF EVERY SCHOOL DAY students ask for assistance of office secretaries, Mrs. Pat Lohrman, Mrs. Shirley Wise, and Mrs. Joann Schell.

TYPICAL OF THE MANY DAILY REQUESTS, Linda Hedderich requests office service.

Special Staff Members Serve

THE LATEST GOSSIP and last minute studying occupy part of lunch hour.

EAGERLY FILING THROUGH the lunchline, Sandy Orr and her fellow students await their luncheon tray.

The bell rings; here they come! Such a familiar warning to the cafeteria staff precedes the daily three-fold rush of hungry students funneling through the lunch line. Cooks, cashier, dietitian, kitchen help—all witness with pride and satisfaction the return of empty trays. The crowd gone, the table cleared, and the dishes washed, preparations for the next day's meal begin again.

PASSING OUT LUNCH TOKENS and returning change is Cashier Mrs. Lena Hannell.

The School In Varied Capacities

Actively serving the high school, custodial and maintenance staff members along with bus drivers perform an indispensable service. Without fail the bus drivers transfer students to school each morning, and when the awaited 3:25 bell sounds, the men once again load their buses for the trip home. Within the building, clean, warm, and well cared for, the evidence of the fruits of hard labor are everywhere. Daily at 3:30 the custodians bring out mops, dustcloths, and wastepaper carts to prepare the building for the next day's bustle.

Robert Landis, Building and Grounds Supervisor, pauses in the midst of his busy schedule.

As Life's Freshmen, The Seniors Proudly

THE HOMECOMING PARADE is over, but one forgotten senior sign still sighs its numbers.

LEADING FOOTBALL WARM-UPS, Senior Co-captains Freeman and Shaeffer bolster team spirit.

HOOSIER GIRLS' STATE AND BOYS' STATE delegates, Jim Ferrier, Bev Yerkes, Steve Hutton, Judy Jones, Clark Adams, Dianne Minneman, Sam Kerlin, and Don McCain represented their school at IU last summer.

In the spring of '66, the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" filter through the bandroom windows to touch the minds of the seniors. Memories turn back to the homecoming parade and the game that followed. There are reflections on their first days of school—as first graders, as freshmen, and as mighty seniors. Triumphs and shortcomings are relived for an instant. Finally their minds turn toward the future that they will build as the last notes die away. Viva la '66!

Step Forward, Diplomas In Hand

Rewards Lie Beyond Next Year's Study

FULFILLING THEIR DUTIES as junior class officers, President Tom Hedderich, Vice President Susan Dwyer, Secretary Diana Blickenstaff, Treasurer Jan Viney, and Student Council Representative Marsha Hill.

THE JUNIOR PROM, one of the highlights of the year, is planned by committee members Tom Hedderich, Mary Johnson, Robert Baker, Tom Flora, Jim Borton, Claudann Brooks, and Kathy Benner.

Goals are set to be reached, and this year's junior class not only attained the goal for magazine sales but also surpassed it. A total of $7,125.83 worth of magazines enabled many students to receive valuable prizes for outstanding salesmanship. Dances and games helped to make a party organized by low-selling homerooms a big success. To fulfill another goal, the juniors used their earnings from sales to present the 1966 Junior Prom, a major school event.

THE THERMOMETER READING of Junior Magazine Sales is read by Bob Calloway and Kenny Boyles.

The Second Year Is Rings And Red

OFFICIATING THE SOPHOMORE CLASS, Student Council Representative Mike Wingard, President Larry Albregts, Vice President Pat Long, and Secretary-Treasurer Amanda Mears have great plans for this year.

ANSWERING SOPHOMORES' QUESTIONS, such as the inquiries by Pam Yates, Ritchie Goyer, and Loys Turner about a party, comprises an important portion of Mrs. Baker's job as class adviser.

Red corduroy flashing through the halls and doorways shouts about DCHS's sophomores. The close of this year marks the completion of half their secondary schooling. In only two more years arrives that special date which is engraved with pride in their shiny new class rings.
